

Casualty

The Irwin Fritchie casualty group represents a diverse selection of insurers, risk-retention groups, and self-insureds in defending personal-injury and property-damage claims arising out of business premises, construction, industrial, maritime, trucking, and vehicular accidents. From the outset of litigation, our primary responsibility is to develop and implement a comprehensive, coordinated defense strategy that fits our client's objectives.

We employ advanced technology to keep transactional costs at a minimum while still thoroughly preparing for trial, and counsel our clients with information that enables them to make cost-effective decisions at the earliest possible moment in litigation. Our trial and negotiating experience also enables us to effectively pursue the successful resolution of claims, whether through settlement, mediation, pre-trial motions, or trial.
